The school, the first state kindergarten school in Thailand, was established in 1940. At that time, the main aim was not only to encourage the understanding of parents about Early Childhood Education, but also to run of a demonstration until of the pre-service preschool teacher's training of the Department of General Education. The present concept underlying the school is to be the field base for students of the Faculty of Education at Suan Dusit University and to be a leading research institution. The school provides education for toddlers (1.3 years old) up to Year 6 (12 years old). Additionally, children with special needs, including autism and hyperactivity, are accepted into the special educational program.

The school curriculum emphasizes on a holistic approach. It is organized around the areas of development: physical development, social & emotional development, knowledge & understanding of the world, communication skill, problem solving and reasoning, and critical thinking skill. Moreover, all children are provided with extra activities once a week: such as swimming, music, creative arts, computer, and English language class with native speakers.

The school is committed to providing the highest-quality early childhood education in a warm and safe environment conducive to learning. The curriculum and activities allow children to develop their physical, emotional, social and intellectual capacities, whilst fostering moral principles and ethics. Children will develop creativity and enhance their sensory learning by participating in hands-on experiences and by developing communication skills commensurate with their age and familiarizing themselves with the use of English in everyday life. Students are encouraged to be self-confident, maintain positive learning attitudes about themselves and others.

The teaching is an “Integrative Learning System”, based on selected theories and innovative techniques, concordant with development of young children and the school context.

The school promotes good relations between parents and local community to facilitate learning, anywhere and anytime which leads to steady and sustainable development of life skills in children.

It is a private not-for-profit organization composed of three independent departments; mix kindergarten (4-6 yrs), the primary school (grade 1-6); and the secondary and upper secondary school (7-12 yrs). Based on the concept of the wholistic learning process, it aims to provide a more natural environment and to promote creative practices that help encourage children at each age level to attain their own learning potential. Parents, teachers, and staff participate closely together to create a variety of lively and supportive activities. By maintaining a warm atmosphere among those teams of people and children, the growth of a cultivated community is certain to be developed and sustained.
