

Empowering Children's Empathy via Early Childhood Education :

A Case Study of Kornkaew Montessori School, Thailand

Dr. Kamkeo Kraisoraphong

Background and Significance of the Study

Thailand has recently launched its second decade of educational reform. The ultimate goal of the reform was to instill learners with skills that are essential to thrive in the 21st century society.

Background and Significance of the Study

Empowering children to enjoy learning is essential while discouraging experiences affects a child's self esteem.

The experiences the child gets at the school can empower and inspire the child's thirst of knowledge.

Background and Significance of the Study

Dr. Maria Montessori once wrote : Only through freedom and environment experience is it practically possible for human development to occur.

Dr. Maria Montessori believed that education is a natural process which carried out by the human individual, and is acquired not by listening to words, but by experiences in the environment.

Background and Significance of the Study

Dr. Maria Montessori believed that education should no longer be mostly imparting knowledge, but must take a new path, seeking the release of human potential.

Objective of the Study

To study the release of human potential through empowering.
